AGED WOMAN AIDED BY RELIEF FORCE

Given Ticket to Wabash, Ind., After Walking Here from Logan, W. Va.

Weak and exhausted from her long walk through the cold biting wind, Mrs. Matilda Lucas, 74, giving her home as Wabash, Ind., told her to the office of Relief Commissioner Charles M. Tobin at the City Hall late Tuesday afternoon, asking for a place to spend the night and saying that she, with her stepson, Clyde Lucas, had walked from Columbus to this city, it was revealed today.

Moved by the plight of the aged woman, the relief commissioner immediately took steps to find a place for her to spend the night and through the kindness of Supt. M. H. Potter, she and her stepson were taken to the Marion County Home.

Wednesday morning she was taken to the Union Station where a ticket was purchased for her to the home of her daughter in Wabash, by the relief commissioner. The stepson continued on his way north.

The aged woman told the relief commissioner that she and her stepson had walked practically all of the distance from Logan, W. Va., to this city.

She told a pathetic story of having been to visit her son who lived in West Virginia and who was ill from tuberculosis and of the futile efforts of her stepson to secure work there. She said that when they realized that there was nothing for him to do and without money they decided to walk back to Wabash, where she has two married daughters and where she could make her home.

RETURN TO HOME

Miss Hazel Clark returned yesterday to her home in a car after being called here to attend funeral services for her brother, Robert Clark, held today.

MARION ENTERS SECOND ROUND

Gas Rate Increase Refused by Commission

CITIES AGAIN WIN IN FIGHT AGAINST BOOST

Utilities Body Rejects Application Seeking Temporary Advance in Charges

HEARING IS COMPLETED

Ruling of Ohio Supreme Court Cited in Decision Made by Commissioners

Hopes that Marion and 17 other Ohio communities will be able to prevent the Logan Gas Co. from increasing rates in their various localities were strengthened today by the announcement that the Ohio Utilities Commission had dismissed the company's application, filed Feb. 17, last, to file a new and higher rate schedule.

The scale of charges, designated as a temporary schedule, provided for an increase in rates corresponding to those charged in other Ohio municipalities, which have effected compromises with the gas company. It was the plan of the company to put the new schedule in effect at once and continue it pending final action by the commission on protests filed by cities against the rate now in effect.

The commission's decision to dismiss the company's latest application was reached following a public hearing held in Columbus late yesterday.

At this hearing Attorney J. E. Mullin, Kane, Pa., general counsel for the company, sought to show that natural gas rates now being collected by the company from customers residing in the protesting communities are "confiscatory and grossly unfair," when compared with the higher rates the company is receiving from other Ohio territory.

Explains Decision
Commissioner James Huffman, in commenting on the action taken by the commission, stated that the utilities body in dismissing the case was following the ruling of the Ohio Supreme Court of April 1926, in which a similar question of the Logan Gas Co. rate controversy was decided. At that time the court held that a new schedule of advance rates can not be filed with the commission until all litigation in a pending rate case is settled.

Attorneys for the protesting cities, in their argument against admitting the company's new rate to the commission's files, declared that the application of the company was not made in good faith, and is merely a camouflage to force communities into settlement on terms offered by the company.

"The gas company is trying to circumvent authority of the Ohio Supreme Court by accomplishing by indirect method that which the court directly denied," it was charged by counsel for the protesting cities.

Grant Weakley, guard at the Junction City brick plant, was killed when he attempted to frustrate Fred Kellogg and Patrick Riley in their dash for liberty.

NO CONTAGIOUS DISEASES IN MARION COUNTY

Dr. N. Siffritt Says 1928 Promises To Be Record Year in Rural Schools

Health conditions during the present school year will probably establish the first record in the history of Marion County as far as contagious diseases are concerned, according to a survey of the situation disclosed today by Dr. N. Siffritt, county health commissioner.

At this time there are no contagious diseases in the territory, which includes all in the county outside the city of Marion. That situation has prevailed for more than three weeks. The last cases reported to him were two of scarlet fever which developed in the village of Caledonia.

Both patients, children in the Caledonia schools, have recovered and their home released from quarantine.

Dr. Siffritt gives school teachers and school officials of the county much of the credit for results which have been achieved in checking contagious among the children.

Prompt Attention
Whenever a child shows the first sign of illness the case gets immediate attention from the teacher, the health commissioner says. The child is removed from class and kept apart from the other pupils until the nature of the ailment is definitely ascertained.

Prompt action in the Caledonia cases and cooperation of the schools with the health department eliminated danger of scarlet fever spreading there, Dr. Siffritt says.

Steadily decrease in the number of diphtheria cases in the county has been due mainly to Schick testing and immunization treatments, the health commissioner states.

RESUME EFFORTS TO EVICT OHIO MINERS

Companies Say Houses Are Needed by Non-Union Workers

Columbus, March 3.—Efforts to evict unemployed miners from 315 company houses in eastern Ohio were resumed here today by four mining companies.

The companies today filed a supplementary petition to their earlier petition declaring that union miners were occupying houses which were needed for the housing of non-union miners. "The petition will be heard by Judge Hough March 24. The companies point out that the injunction granted some time ago by Judge Hough, ordered the miners to vacate the houses Feb. 28.

The petition was brought by the Warner Collieries Co., which asked that its 92 houses at Crabapple No. 1, and its 100 houses at Wolf Run, be vacated by the 20 houses at Rose Mine be vacated by the Wheeling & Lake Erie Coal Mining Co., which asked that its 24 houses at Dun Glen No. 1, and its mine house at Dillonvale, be vacated, and by the Clarkson Coal Mining Co., which asked that its 90 houses at Crow Hollow Mines No. 1 and 2, be vacated.

STATE FUNERAL FOR MARSHAL DIAZ HELD

All Rome in Mourning as Body of Hero is Carried Through Streets

Rome, March 3.—A state funeral was held today for Marshal Armando Diaz, Italy's war hero and former commander-in-chief of the Italian Army.

While cannon thundered a requiem salute, church bells tolled and military bands played draped overland, the body of Marshal Diaz was carried from the Unknown Soldier's Tomb to the Church of Santa Maria degli Angeli, and in the morning. The flag-draped coffin was escorted by a detachment of black-shirted Fascisti and soldiers drawn from every regiment of the Italian army.

All ranks of the people united in final homage to the great soldier. Premier Mussolini and King Victor Emmanuel were in the funeral procession as well as representatives of foreign governments.

Business was at a standstill throughout Rome. Flags were at half mast and many buildings were draped with mourning.

AVIATION STUDENT NEAR DEATH AFTER NOSE-DIVE

Marquette, Cal., March 3.—Richard Mills, 19-year-old aviation student, was on the verge of death and his flying instructor, W. H. Peterson, 34, was suffering from critical injuries today as a result of an airplane crash near here.

The plane, piloted by Mills, took a sudden nose-dive just as it approached the ground for a landing and crashed, burying the two occupants in a tangled heap of wreckage.

BOYS' BODIES FOUND IN CANAL ARE IDENTIFIED

Police Declare Children Had Wire Wrapped Around Necks; No Water in Lungs

Indiana Harbor, Ind., March 3.—George Chism, alias Smith, East Chicago, Ind., founder worker, confessed to police here this afternoon he was with his two young sons when they "jumped" into the Industrial Canal here 11 days ago. According to Chief of Police Regan.

Chism insisted the boys leaped into the canal despite the fact that when the bodies were found they were found to have been bound with wire.

His confession failed to satisfy police who pointed out that no water was found in the boys' lungs indicating they died before their bodies entered the water.

Indiana Harbor, Ind., March 3.—Bodies of two boys who had been murdered and their bodies weighted with wire and thrust into the industrial canal here were identified today as the children of George Smith of East Chicago, Ill.

Learning from the landlord of the building where Smith formerly resided that Smith and his wife had frequent domestic quarrels involving the children, police immediately began a search for Smith.

The landlord, who performed the identification, said Smith was supposed to have taken the two sons to Canada two weeks ago for a visit with relatives.

Seek Woman's Body
Chief of Police Regan ordered that all ships and barges in the canal be removed for further dragging of the canal, expecting that perhaps the body of Mrs. Smith might be found near the spot where the two sons had been thrown into the canal.

The body of the first boy found to have been bound with wire was the body of the second boy which appeared Thursday.

From a crushed appearance of the faces, police believe they had been struck with a dull instrument.

AIR COPS NEXT

Commerce Department Expanding Its Corps of Inspectors

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Air traffic cops will be one of the next developments of modern industrial civilization.

While it is not necessary to have aerial officers on constant patrol of the airways to keep the planes and balloons "to the right," the Commerce Department is expanding its corps of inspectors, it was learned today.

Charged with the duty of enforcing the air traffic regulations the inspectors' force actually is equivalent to an air police force.

PLAN TO START W. CENTER-ST WORK IN WEEK

Date Will Depend Upon Progress Made in Moving Back Light Standards

Providing weather conditions permit, improvement work on W. Center st., which is to feature the city's building program this year, will get under way next week.

Announcement of plans for starting the work at the earliest possible date was made today by Harry Drake, of P. Drake & Sons, contracting firm in charge of the improvement.

The project will get under way with excavations for the sanitary and storm water sewers which are to be laid in connection with the widening and repaving of the thoroughfare. This work will depend largely upon the progress made by the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co. in moving back its light standards, which now are located directly over the line of the proposed sewer trenches.

Ground Frozen
Just at present the company is experiencing considerable trouble in moving the standards, the frozen condition of the ground making excavating work doubly difficult. In addition to making an excavation around the base of the standards workmen must dig a trench for the added length of underground conduit.

It is proposed by the contracting firm to start the sewer trench excavation at Leander st. and work west to the Hocking Valley crossing, the west terminus of the proposed improvement. When this stretch is completed work will start at Leander and proceed east to Oak st., the east terminus.

The two sewers to be laid in connection with the widening and improvement program will remedy a condition that has caused numerous complaints after every heavy rain.

The sewers are to be laid in the same trench with the sanitary trunk line below.

Coming east the storm water sewer will be 33 inches in diameter from Leander to Garden st., 30 inches to Oakwood and 27 inches to Oak st. From Leander east the sewer will be 20 inches in diameter to Olney st., 18 inches to within a short distance of the Hocking Valley crossing and 15 inches to the tracks.

The sanitary line, which will be tapped into the trunk line at Blainey will be 15 inches east to Garden st. and 12 inches from there to Oak st.

INTEREST CENTERS ON SUNDAY MOVIES

Will Shows Be Permitted Here Is Question Being Debated

Will Sunday motion picture shows be permitted to become a permanent feature of Marion's entertainment schedule?

That is the question upon which general interest seemed to center today as local arrangements were being made to give the new venture its first try-out at the Grand Theater, Monday.

According to apparently reliable reports, steps will be taken to fight the project but no statements regarding the probable plan of procedure could be obtained from local ministers or other church representatives and to be heading the opposition.

E. F. Sharpless, manager of the Grand, said that all details for Sunday's program have been completed and that the three shows scheduled for the day will be held as outlined in his first public announcement, issued Wednesday.

The shows are scheduled for 1:20, 3:15 and 9 o'clock.

HARDING HIGH MEETS SOUTH OF COLUMBUS

Defeats Aquinas Cagers in First Game at Delaware Tourney

SCORE IS 23 TO 11

Prospect Loses Today's Game and Eliminates County in Class B

BULLETIN

Marion County was definitely eliminated from the Class B basketball tournament at Delaware today when Prospect was defeated by Millsport, 18 to 11.

Other scores were: Magnolia Springs, 21; Hebron, 11; Hyatts, 17; Grandview Heights, 16; Upper Arlington, 30; Mt. Gilead, 25.

Dresden, 15; New Holland, 13; Marysville, 28; St. Marys, 18; Gambler, 29; Bexley, 10; New Dover, 27; Mt. Sterling, 19.

By KARI R. WELSH, Sports Editor

The glamour and glory of a Central District championship, although faint and indistinct, is being felt by the majority of Marion fans today following the brilliant victory turned in last night by the Red and Black basketballers of Harding High in the opening round at Delaware.

In the outstanding contest of the Class A division of the Central Ohio High School tournament, Harding cagers defeated Columbus Aquinas, 23 to 11.

It is generally conceded that but one black spot is cutting off the sight of a title. This black spot takes the form of Columbus South, bugles of local championship aspirations, the team that Harding will play in the second round this afternoon at 4:15 o'clock.

A victory would mean that other games would be merely stepping stones of the much coveted throne.

Delaware Wins
This may seem to be taking in a lot of territory but the scoring games last night in which eight teams participated, the local cagers and Delaware were the cream of the tournament.

Delaware pumped into the limelight by defeating Columbus North, 27 to 22. The college town quintet would not worry the locals since it was defeated in two previous encounters this year.

Lancaster under a fair showing in defeating Newark, 31 to 10, but the performance of the Red and Black fans is taking the eyes of tournament fans. In the other Class A game Westerville defeated Columbus West, 20 to 19.

Harding has shown some steady improvement throughout the season although getting away to a bad start, last night found the team fighting its hardest and playing its best brand of ball this season.

FRIENDS PUT WALSH IN CALIFORNIA RACE

Three-Cornered Struggle for State's Democratic Delegation Looms

Washington, March 3.—Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, the Senate's "fall prosecutor" today made a formal announcement of his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

San Francisco, March 3.—A three-cornered struggle for California's delegation to the forthcoming Democratic national convention loomed today.

Closely upon the heels of the open entrance of Senator James A. Reed of Missouri into the battle for California's vote in the convention, came the definite announcement that the highly-organized forces of William Gilman McAdoo have decided upon Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana as their choice for the presidential nomination.

With the movement for Governor Al Smith already under way in the state, this decision of the McAdoo legions brings the number of factions in the fight to win the favor of California voters in the primary elections, May 1, up to three and practically assures the prospect of one of the bitterest political fruds in the history of California Democracy.

Save 'Em or Sink 'Em?

After Hoover Pulls Flood Sufferers Out of the Mississippi He Finds They Are All Democrats

BY WILL ROGERS

Hoover saved a lot of Democrats

ALL I know is what I read in the papers. I have been traveling so fast I didn't get to read all the papers so I naturally turned to the old reliable "Literary Digest" and grabbed up what little snippets of news I needed to mend out a fairly informed week.

It tells about "Hoover entering the race." Well, that was mighty informing. But Hoover had been in the race since the old days of "Save a Jump of sugar a day and it will keep the Germans away." He hadn't any more than fed his first Belgian than the women who had dropped three stitches on what they thought was to be a sweater but which some soldier afterwards wore as a sock, and says, "There's a man that ought to be President." He grabbed the mothers by the heartstrings right away when he said, "Feed the soldiers first, and if there is any left throw the politicians a bone." He was the first "Food Dictator."

New Kind of Dictator

We had had all kinds of dictators. We had had political dictators that tell us how we should vote for them; we had had literary critics and dictators who had told us what to read; and my Lilliputian friend Bill Hayes was to tell us what we were to have to look at while we were waiting for the news reel to come on. Hoover is the first one to take us off beefsteak and put us on calories. He grabbed off the Catholic vote right away by making the Baptist eat fish on Friday. He took white bread away from us and had us eating bran mash like a horse. Fed the wheat to the hogs and made the Jewish soldiers eat pork. Fed all the corn to the army mule so he could keep fat and kick a new recruit. Army mules crippled more soldiers than the Germans. He put a fixed price on wheat and sold steel and iron to the highest bidder. He had us sweetening our coffee with nothing but a slogan: "Drink it black and give the enemy a whack." We buttered our bread with a slogan: "Spread it thin and we are bound to win." "Why eat food when substitutes will fill you just as full?" He won the war, but he ruined our stomachs. He gave us freedom, but it took us three years to get used to eating meat again. He starved us into liberty.

Then when he came back why they wanted to run him for President. But it was the Democrats that wanted to run him. Well, he had been away a long time and had been out of touch with political affairs, but he hadn't been so much out of touch with them that he didn't know about what the strength of a Democratic candidate would be in 1920. "Course he had been working with President Wilson and naturally they took him for a Democrat. But if you remember that's why they shouldn't have taken him for a Democrat, for it was the Republicans that worked better with Mr. Wilson than the Democrats did. Well, the Republicans got in, and President Harding wanted to add enough respectable members to his cabinet to make it kinder balance, so he had to draft this Democrat, Hoover.

Managed to Drag Along

Well, he dragged along in the cabinet there. There is mighty little nourishment belonging to a thing like that. It's about like playing in the line in a football game. Unless you get the ball to run with, you are there to do nothing but get run over, or try to make a hole for the "headman" to come through. Well, he couldn't see any percentage of sitting in a "horus of ten voices, so when the 1921 handup came on he was laying on a radio sounding board with his ears to the ground. Well that was a bad year for outsiders. Cal had been in two and a half years, and he wanted to run again on a vindication platform. He swore he could keep still four more years and not see or hear a thing. Well, that was just what the Republicans wanted. They said if somebody don't watch us too close for the next four years why we will be willing to give what is left to the Democrats. So when all the scandal came along about the elections in Pennsylvania and Illinois, why, Calvin was looking out the window watching the sheep now the White House lawn. (One of his economy measures.) But Jim Reed, the old Sherlock Holmes of the Democrats, he smelled graft, traced it down and sure enough his deductions were perfect.

But I am getting ahead of my story. In '24 they offered the Vice Presidency to Mr. Hoover. Well, that was just verging on an insult, especially when you knew the good care Mr. Coolidge took of himself. So he turned it down. They called up Lowden and offered it to him. When he heard what it was, he got so mad he said he would devote the rest of his life to some lost cause so he took up Farm Relief. Dawes wanted to get a chance to tell the Senate what he thought of them so he went clear to the trouble of being Vice President just to do it. Well, Dawes saw he couldn't do anything toward reforming the Senate, so he just got sore and went to sleep and left 'em.

Sure Showed Up

Hoover stuck along with the cabinet, thinking something would show up, and it did. It was the Mississippi Flood. It was like old times to be doing something after being idle with the Government for so long. He did a wonderful lot of work and saved a lot of lives. But when they got em all dried off and looked at them, they were Democrats. Well, he didn't know whether to keep 'em or shove 'em back in again. It was a humanitarian and he couldn't promise to take care of 'em. Congress would give them some food stuff. So it looks like the Hoover of his hands and the only thing he saved is a Republican that was saved a Democratic life, and if he ever gets to be President, I bet there will be times when he wishes he had pushed 'em back in again.

Now if that flood had been in the north and it had been Republicans he had saved, why, he wouldn't have to charge it off to profit and loss. It could have wrong some voters out of it. But a Democrat voting for a Republican down South is just like throwing a hand full of gravel at a battleship. He will have their moral support, but their votes will go to a far cause, as usual.

HAS GOOD RECORD

Prospect Team Averages 37 Points a Game for Season

Prospect, March 3.—The Prospect Central Garage cage team under the management of Fred Emery, playing its first season, has established a good record. The score book shows that the team has won eight of the ten games played to date. The garagemen lost the second game of the season last Monday night, to the Howitzer Co. team of Marion, but they were without the services of two star players.

The garagemen have scored 365 points in their 10 games for an average of thirty-six and one-half points a game. They held their opponents to 290 points. Kelley the garagemen's right forward, has scored 152 points in the nine games in which he has participated, an average of 17 points a game.

Their most outstanding victory was over the Ostrander Independents, who are pressing the fast Bellpoint Ex-Hi stars for first place honors in the league of Delaware County semipro teams.

Tonight the Prospect team will participate in the annual tournament at LaRue.

Lack of a Lighting System

Announcement was made one day this week, that Safety Director Strayer had been authorized by the unanimous action of the city council to advertise for bids for the installation of traffic lights at the six street intersections at which the pedestrian lights were originally installed; that bids would be asked for both central suspended lights and side arm lights, although the committee which has been investigating the matter of traffic lights favored the latter.

Each of these systems has its advantages, and each its disadvantages. Either will serve for the direction of the decently-minded motorist, and both will be disregarded by the naturally reckless drivers, whenever opportunity offers, by those who resent regulation of any kind, by the naturally vicious and the drunkards. Against the last four classes and others of their ilk, the eternal vigilance of the authorities and that alone will accomplish results.

But it is not so much of this aspect of this proposition we wish to speak as of the haphazard methods employed in the matters of traffic lights and traffic regulations.

We haven't a doubt but what the city authorities authorized to make the purchase will use their very best judgment in making selection and very probably will select the best light, but it strikes us that the system, or lack of system, by which selections are made is wholly wrong.

Under present conditions, the motorist finds one set of traffic regulations and one variety of lights in one town and entirely different regulations and lights in the next. Pedestal lights in one town, overhead in the next, arm lights in the third, and no one, and the turns in no two succeeding towns alike.

There should be more uniformity in both lights and regulations. Motorizing would be safer and more of a pleasure were there uniform systems throughout a state, if not throughout the land. Even though the style of light used were not in all respects so good as some other, it is our belief that it would serve the traveling public better than a multiplicity of designs. If experience demonstrated some form of lighting to be more desirable than all others, it should be adopted by the cities of a state as one and not piecemeal.

We have demonstrated here in Marion that a change of lights can be effected without an overwhelming hardship.

An Amazing Contest.

Never in the past, so far as we are able to recall, has there been an oratorical contest offering for ability rewards so generous as the present competition sponsored in this state by the Brush-Moore syndicate of papers, of which this newspaper is one. The research and preparation for the contest should, in itself, prove rich reward to every contestant. But without considering it, the rewards are most alluring. We do not propose to go into the course of procedure to be followed for their attainment or the plan outlined for the making of the awards. That has been covered repeatedly in our news columns. It is enough to say that liberal purses are to be awarded for first, second and third district honors, those in this district aggregating $150, a magnificent trophy will go to each state winner, and not only will a trip to Washington be awarded to each winner in the eight zones into which the country has been divided, but also a trip of eleven weeks to Europe.

In other words, each of the eight winners in the national contest will win $50, a state trophy, a trip to Washington and the European trip, with all expenses paid. Why, such a contest is simply amazing!

A trip to Washington, the dream of some people's lives. Washington, the beautiful. The capitol, the most pleasing to the eye of all capitals extant. The Lincoln memorial, than which nothing more impressive of the kind exists. The Washington monument, highest in the world. Arlington, where lie the remains of the nation's honored dead. Mt. Vernon, the home of "The Father of His Country," and where his ashes rest. The gold-toned Congressional library. The Smithsonian Institution. The Corcoran Art gallery. The various department buildings. The beautiful avenues lined by magnificent homes, and embassy buildings.

And added to this, a trip to Europe, lasting from June 20 to September 17, through France, Switzerland, Italy, Germany, Holland, Belgium and England! Why, some people would be willing to sacrifice years of their lives for such a tour as that!

And, like all its forerunners in the contest, it's educational. Just as the research involved is educational, just as the trip to Washington will be educational, so will the trip to Europe be in the highest degree. It has been said that we go to the Old world to polish up new ideas. We do not particularly fancy that view, but we will say that we can not fully appreciate the New world till we have seen the Old, for worth, at the last analysis, is relative. We get the best line on our own worth, as a land, as a people and as individuals by a study of other lands, other peoples and other individuals.

That such an opportunity should be offered to the school youth of the land is almost beyond comprehension. Twenty—yes ten—years ago it would have been inconceivable.

The Atlanta Constitution suggests that when the senate flashes considering Tea Pot Dome it might take under advisement the Ivory dome. But how could it do that without violating senatorial courtesy?

Let us hope that Ambassador Herrick is wrong in his conclusion, that a reference to the fact that Paris is but thirty-three hours away, made in a letter to him from Colonel Lindbergh, means that the Lone Eagle contemplates another transatlantic flight. It is not the part of wisdom to defy fate too often.

If thousands of dollars' worth of diamonds can be picked up off the ground in the new Namaqualand field down in South Africa, we guess it's up to us to play safe by getting rid of the stock we have saved up for a rainy day before the news of the discovery gets noised about.

Who knows? Possibly it might be better all around were this country to tell Europe the fact in the case; that something like nine-tenths of the people over here are not enough interested in her to care what she may say or think concerning us.

If there is a majority against his hand-picked candidates for the new chamber of deputies, Mr. Mussolini agrees to another election with each of the Italian parties, saving the Communist party, entering candidates, and he pledges himself and fascism to abide by the result. Benito must be mighty certain that there will not be any second election.

Phosphorus Plays Big Part.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

I have already spoken to you about the importance of iron and lime in the diet. It is important, not alone for growing children to have a sufficient mineral supply, but it is almost as important for grown people to have it.

One of the important minerals is phosphorus. The only time most people think of phosphorus is when they want a match.

There is an old-fashioned notion that eating fish will supply the phosphorus for the brain and nervous system. There are other foods which carry phosphorus and just as much of this important element. Of these I shall speak more at length in a few moments.

At this time I desire to impress upon you the necessity of having your full supply of this element. It is essential to the tiny cells of the body. You all know that the body is made up of minute cells. Phosphorus has an important part in the foundation structure of the cells. Also it is needed for the multiplication of these cells.

It forms a large part of the bony structure. Also, it is a most essential part of the liquid part of the blood as well as the other fluids of the body. Perhaps the most active function of phosphorus may be said to be its work in aiding the glands and their products.

While eggs and milk are richest in phosphorus, it is also found in meat, cheese, whole wheat, dried beans, almonds, peanuts, walnuts, etc. Study a table of food values and find where each of the essential minerals can be found.

Magnesia, soda, potash and chlorine are all found in meat, fish, vegetables and the salt with which you season your food. They are needed to supply the needs of the body.

Many persons suffer from hyperacidity. In fact there is never a day but my mail is full of inquiries as to how to overcome this trouble. One cause for this condition may be that you eat too much salt. This combined with certain elements found in the gastric juices and the combination results in an excessive amount of hydrochloric acid.

The need for iodine in the system is one that can not be overlooked. If there is a lack of this, immediately there is a disturbance of the glands, particularly of the thyroid gland. But I shall go more into detail about this disturbance another time.

Today I want to impress upon you a few of the many reasons why your daily diet should include plenty of fresh fruits, vegetables, meats, fish, fresh poultry, cereals, milk and all the mineral carrying foods.

Effects of Seepage—Preventive.

Editor Star—The seepage that has transformed hundreds of lakes into marshes and ultimately into onion and celery fields within the Mississippi valley has been toward the equator due to that force created by the revolution of the earth around its axis.

The water in the earth as well as the water on the surface of the earth is influenced by that force. The influence extends as far north as the fiftieth degree of latitude and is practically the same on three continents.

The St. Lawrence system is wholly within the equatorial belt. A direct cause of the lowering of the Great Lakes is due to the seepage from the water level that sustains them.

The southern shore of Lake Michigan is short. Its southern outlet that is visible, flows through a rock formation. Fortunately, it does not flow through alluvial soil. What effect this outlet may have on the seepage is unknown. The flow of this stream should be uniform regardless of the force of its headwaters. Undue stress is given this flow of water because it is visible.

Lake Erie has a long southern coastline. Directly south is a water-bed with caverns open to exploration. They were once filled with water and fed perpetual springs that sustained brooks the entire year. Seepage drained these caverns and lower veins are now affecting the entire lake region. The Great Lakes are in grievous need of a concrete bottom, which is not feasible.

There are several agencies that prevent the veins of the earth from performing their function. In the forests the earth is porous as deep as the roots go. Cleared land retards saturation of the soil. Cultivated land is usually surface drained for the purpose of removing the rainfall as rapidly as possible. All tile drainage is unscientific because it fails to recognize the subsoil as nature's reservoir.

Land unprotected from the heat of the sun by vegetation becomes parched and baked. Saturation is thwarted and erosion begins.

The state and nation should encourage the growth of forests; the construction of lakes, reservoirs and ponds.

The state should regulate the flow of all its inland streams. A speed law for water courses is as important as a speed law for highways.

Rivers emptying into the Great Lakes should be made arms of the lake into which they flow, where feasible. They and their tributaries should be dredged to their highest possible source, encroaching on the Mississippi system. It may be feasible to feed the smaller streams by artesian wells.

The lower Maumee should be made an arm of Lake Erie to the highest feasible point. It should be made navigable to Ft. Wayne. The lower St. Joseph should be made an arm of Lake Michigan and navigable to Elkhart.

An increase in the area of the Great Lakes would increase the area of the water level that sustains them.

A greater and deeper flow on the surface of the Great Lakes and their tributaries would counteract, to some extent, the seepage from the lakes.

Seepage can only be modified by human ingenuity, however. Seepage is affected by the earth's center of gravity. The latter is affected by the sedimentation of the Mississippi.

Making arms of rivers emptying into the Great Lakes as the two instances mentioned, would not lower the lakes as the case would be in enlarging a lake or pond having a limited inflow and no outlet but evaporation.

The formation of islands in the lake proper, from earth excavated from a river would not be detrimental. This would be the most convenient means of disposing of the earth.

Congressman Chalmers has introduced a bill asking for an appropriation to deepen the channels in the St. Lawrence system. It is hoped that the bill will be favorably considered and the appropriation granted.

Any work done on the St. Lawrence system would be constructive. The effect of the work performed in any given period, a month, year or decade, would not be contingent upon what is done in the future.

The Cry for Power.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISE.

The science that two French engineers, Georges Claude and Paul Boucherot, have proposed at the Sorbonne in Paris stands in the category of the colossal. It contemplates the beginning of a human control over the circulatory system of this globe, the arteries of that we call the earth. The great arteries of the world's blood are the ocean currents. They control the conditions of habitability of its fairest lands, their influence extends even to the centers of continents. If the oceans were of small extent the world would be largely a desert. The Gulf stream gives the British Isles and western and central Europe a more genial climate than that of the United States, though the latter lie much farther south. The Arctic Labrador current, on the other hand, cools New England, and indirectly modifies the climate of the whole Great Lake region. So, all over the habitable globe we find the conditions of temperature, rainfall, etc., more or less directly affected by the great "rivers in the ocean," so vividly described by Maury in his "Physical Geography of the Sea."

If human engineering could find a means of guiding and modifying these colossal currents we could almost make what we would of our world. By veering off the Gulf stream, and displacing its dependent "drifts," we could bring Europe to terms with a glacial blockade which would recall the ancient advance of the ice. On the other hand the Japanese, if they could manipulate the gigantic "Kuro Siro," the "Black Stream," of the Pacific, and thus divert the customary current along the American coast, would exercise a form of "sea-power" that Admiral Mahan never dreamed of.

But operations on such a scale are for some other world, or for a Jules Verne romance. Still, something might conceivably be done, think the Frenchmen to whom I have referred, toward cooling the tropics by artificial machinery which would bring to the surface, in the hotter regions, the deep, cold ocean water that probably never rises above thirty-five to forty-five degrees temperature.

They think that a mean temperature of about seventy degrees—almost ideal for ordinary living conditions—might thus be caused to prevail on tropical islands and coasts where now the heat is too great for comfort, and especially too great for work. On the other hand, they calculate that by interaction between the hot tropical waters, impounded for the purpose, and the cold water brought directly from the depths, vapor currents could be produced that would suffice to drive systems of turbines, and thus supply an enormous amount of mechanical energy without the necessity of burning any fuel. As a laboratory experiment, given an inclination for some one to have convinced some of their fellow-engineers that the project is feasible, provided that enough faith and money, which is the fuel that keeps faith warm in such matters, can be had.

The scheme is tempting to the imagination like that other one, also of French origin, if I remember correctly, which proposes to take the heat that we need for domestic and mechanical purposes from the hot rocks of the earth under our feet. For a being as ingenious and as ambitious as man it is truly aggravating to see so much natural power going to waste, especially since science has taught us how to make it serve us in a thousand ways, if only we can get hold of it even in its rawest state.

Here is the earth, a six-hundred-thousand spin-wheel, grinding out unused energy in unmeasurable planetary quantities, and we sit helpless by, or rather, we sit on top of the huge machine, like stupid flies. Still closer to us, if theories be true, lie the stores of almost unthinkable great energy locked in the atoms of all matter. Out in the space depths it makes great suns glow. Here we have it right in our hands, and yet we cannot touch it! Fundamentally, science tells us, we are ourselves made of energy, our very substance is a state of condensation of energy, and yet we have to beg for energy to drive our autos and to keep us warm. That now music apparently coaxed out of empty space by waving fingers may point the way to the great discovery which shall at last emancipate man by attuning him to the universe.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

Lecture-Recital Club To Present Noted Violinist

Miss Catherine Wade-Smith To Appear Here March 13

MISS CATHERINE WADE-SMITH

Members of the Marion Lecture-Recital Club will present Miss Smith, violinist, in an artistic concert Tuesday night, March 13, in the Star Auditorium, at a point program with members of the club, under the direction of L. D. Lathrop, of Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware. Tickets are now being placed in the hands of members of the club and also will be on sale at Bartlett's Drug Store.

Miss Smith is regarded as one of the foremost of the younger violinists of America and won the national prize in the biennial contest conducted by the National Federation of Music Clubs at Portland, Ore., in 1925. She comes from Bellingham, Wash., and received her musical education in Chicago, studying with Leon Samcinski. Her other honors include the award of the Walter W. Naumburg Musical Foundation and she was given a New York debut recital in recognition of outstanding merit.

Not only does her extraordinary skill as a violinist make her the great success she is on the concert stage, but Miss Smith's youth, charm and glowing personality add to her delightfulness as an entertainer. Critics hail her as the most important violinist since the days of Maud Powell.

Things

Fireside Gardening
White Elephants
Lion vs. Lamb

BY EDNA S. DUTTON

ABOUT the nicest things that come through the mail box are the seeds and flower catalogues and other works of art if anybody asks you. Alluringly they tempt your wares in your face and before you are aware of it the fruits of the expert advertising man's labors have got in their deadly work and you are yourself endorsing the hardware man's efforts with the price of a shiny new spade, hoe, trowel and accessories, and you chuckle to yourself as you visualize the neighbors' eyes resting on their checkbooks like hard boiled eggs, when they behold the garden of yours. Of course all this takes place as you toast your skin by a nice warm radiator and it is a safe bet that the first day you should be breaking ground for this wonder garden, you'll be sniffing the ozone at 90 per cent from your automobile. At least, though, you have had the fun of planning the thing.

WHITE elephants seem to be almost as popular here as in Siam, although they are jugged about much more carefully and are a lot more useful. Minus the eternal "gimme" of the circus variety they may be found roaming at large, holding an old-fashioned bowl of gold fish on their back or keeping in plain the noise works of the old masters or five of the six best sellers, as your fancy listeth. One style I saw that was particularly fetching was a pair of the noble beasts standing in a row, and showing with all their might and main to hold in place the several books left to their guardianship. Another set did not seem to take their work so seriously or else they had a 99 year lease on the place for they calmly reclined on the tapestry cover and left the books to hang onto the base on which they stood.

I THINK the month of March must be to the "wonderful" weatherman what amateur night is to the aspiring Theatians. At least I like to think that no one man could be brutal enough to hand out the divers brands of weather that is usually our portion in this particular month. It looks like the weatherman surely goes away and lets the boys alone, and the boys do just what we would do, turn on first the hot, then the cold, then the wet and then the dry.

NOW NO. 44,900

San Quentin, Cal., March 3—The footlights are darkened and the spotlight's glare is blotted out by the grayness of prison walls. Dorothy Mackay, actress, against a background of a dull hue, has a new role to enact today: the more realistic part of No. 44,900 in San Quentin State Penitentiary.

Of the quarter of a million Americans who visit France every year, French statisticians estimate two per cent are millionaires. Americans spend $230,000,000 a year in France.

Federal Man Sent Here To Aid in Preparing Income Tax Reports Explains Plan

All Single Persons Whose Net Income During 1927 Was $1,500 or More and Married Men Earning $3,500 or More Must File

C. W. Beach, of Columbus, auditor from the U. S. Internal Revenue Bureau who is in Marion to assist local citizens and business concerns in making out their annual income tax returns, issued a statement today explaining the major features of the tax law.

One point especially stressed by Beach, and one which he says has been the subject of considerable misunderstanding, is the fact that returns must be made on all incomes which come within the taxable limitations, regardless of exemptions.

This means that every single person whose net income last year was $1,500 or more and every married person with an income of $3,500 or more must file returns, even though they may not be required to pay taxes because of exemption provisions of the law.

All failing to make returns, whether exempt from taxes or not, are liable to a penalty, Beach states.

For convenient reference, Beach lists individuals and firms required to make returns in six classifications, as follows:

Every person whose net income comes under one of these heads: $1,500 or more if single, or if married and not living with husband and wife; $3,500 if married and living with husband or wife; $1,500 if single but the head of a family, such as a son supporting a mother, or other dependents; $1,500 or more if a minor and not dependent on the parent; every individual and every married couple having a gross income of $5,000 or more, regardless of the amount of net income; every partnership and every corporation, not specifically exempt, whether it has any income or not.

In the case of a single person listed as the head of a family, mentioned in one of the above classifications, $3,500 exemption is allowed, the same as for a married person but under provisions of the law a tax return must be filed if the individual's net income is $1,500 or more.

Exemptions Allowed
In addition $400 exemption is provided for each dependent under 18 years of age. This applies to both married persons and single individuals classed as heads of families.

Penalties for willful failure to make and file a return on time can range up to $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, and in addition a 25 per cent addition to the tax is provided.

The penalty for willfully making a false or fraudulent return is not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both, and also a 50 per cent extra tax levy.

Net income is defined by Beach as being the gross amount of income for last year after taking out deductions permitted by law.

These deductions and other technical points will be explained by Beach in making out returns. He has established his office in the law library room on the third floor of the courthouse, where he will be on duty until after March 15, the last day set by law for filing returns. His services are furnished without charge.

Explains Features
Beach in his statement explains the following important features of making out income tax returns:
Gross income: Earnings from personal services, business and trades, profits from sales of property, interest, rents, royalties, dividends and similar sources of revenue.

Deductions allowed to fit net income: Expenses, losses, interest, taxes, depreciation, etc.

The gross income of corporation, Beach explains, includes the same items as for individuals, but the deductions are not quite the same. The chief differences are deductions allowed individuals for losses not connected with business or trade, and for donations.

The law states, Beach says, that the tax shall be imposed on the net income "of every individual" and "every corporation." Partnerships are not taxed directly as such. The individual partners account for their partnership profits in their personal returns, the partnership submitting a return for information purposes only.

Bureau Has Check
The Internal Revenue Bureau has an accurate check on funds paid out by firms and individuals which enables it to verify returns made by those to whom the payments are made.

Every person making payments of salaries, wages, interest, rents and commissions of $1,000 or more during the year to a single person, a partnership or a trustee, or $3,500 or more to a married person, Beach states, is required to make a true and accurate return to the commissioner of internal revenue. This return must show the amount of such payments and the names and addresses of the recipients on forms furnished by any collector of internal revenue upon request.

"ADMIRAL" McDONALD CITED FOR BRAVERY
Takes 12 Prisoners Single Handed in Legion Drive on Enemy

Substantial gains are being made in the membership campaign of Third-McDonnell Post, No. 102, of the American Legion, according to an official "communiqué" issued today by Carl E. Ebert, chief of staff of the three branches of the organization competing in the drive.

The campaign, being conducted under rules of warfare, is to close with an "armistice" celebration the night of March 13.

"The second and major phase of our attack upon the enemy opened promptly at 8 p. m., Feb. 18, with a rolling barrage that rolled in many prisoners," the communiqué reads. "The navy was very successful in its contacts with the enemy. The Army and Marines supported each other splendidly and the results of their efforts made a telling gain towards '200 members trench.' Our forces are now engaged in a hand-to-hand personal encounter and we are expecting much from every man."

The first of several special awards to be made for obtaining new members has been won by D. J. McDonald, for filing 12 applications, the communiqué announces. This is reported as a citation as follows:

"For conspicuous bravery in action with the enemy, in that he has single-handed taken 12 prisoners, the gold miniature Legion lapel button is hereby conferred upon Admiral D. J. McDonald of the navy."

TREASURY BALANCE IS $1,221,642.21
Amount Unusually Large Due to Semi-Annual Tax Collections

The Marion County treasury showed a balance of $1,221,642.21 on Feb. 29, according to the monthly report completed yesterday by Auditor Earl E. Thomas and Treasurer James E. Messenger.

This unusually large amount resulted from the semi-annual tax collection, funds from which were not distributed to the various taxing subdivisions until March 1.

Receipts during February amounted to $206,560.87 and expenditures $111,408.57.

Interest on funds on deposit in the various banks amounted to $1,731.02. Next month's interest total will run considerably higher because of the large daily balances resulting from the tax collection.

SHIP BACK HOME
Los Angeles Finally Put in Hangar After All-Night Struggle

Naval Air Station, Lakeland, N. J., March 3—The United States Navy dirigible Los Angeles was safely put into its hangar here at 7:05 this morning. After an all-night struggle with a gusty wind which for hours kept it cruising about the field, attempts to hitch the giant airship to its mooring mast had proved futile.

It was long after daylight when the wind finally died down and the ground crew, held in readiness during the night after being hastily summoned by the blowing of the huge emergency siren, seized the landing ropes and walked the huge ship into its hangar.

It was a harrowing night for all involved, when the cables snapped at the first attempt to fasten the dirigible to its mooring mast. The officers and men on the field gasped with fear, recalling the wild ride of the ill-fated Shenandoah when it broke away here in similar manner. Later the Shenandoah was destroyed with the loss of many lives in a storm over Ohio.

MOTHER SLAIN
Frightened Child Tells How Woman Was Attacked and Shot
Irvington, N. J., March 3—Sobbing and shaking with fright a seven-year-old girl today told police how her mother, Mrs. Filipina Ferruzza, 33, was attacked and shot to death in her home here late last night.

Filipina, the grief-stricken little girl, was found by neighbors who heard her crying. She said a strange man forced his way into her mother's unlighted bedroom and told of the struggle that ensued. Clinging her eight-month-old daughter to her breast, Mrs. Ferruzza fled to the front porch where the man shot her three times, the little girl said.

One bullet penetrated the mother's heart, narrowly missing the infant, and she fell dead. A passer-by discovered the body.
